Guadix y El Marquesado

Crossroads

The district of Guadix y El Marquesado is a crossroads between the western Spain and Andalusia. Since prehistory it has been an obligatory route and boasts a complete road network, making it one of the region's best-communited districts.

The district is formed by an enormous high plateau located between the Sub-Baetic and Penibetic ranges, its northern limit is the Sierra de Cazorla and its southern limit is the Sierra Nevada, which separates it from the Mediterranean Sea.

Only at 45 minutes away is Grenade airport. The A 92, backbone of Andalusia's road network, crosses Guadix y El Marquesado from East to West and a new section of the dual carriageway links Guadix to Huéneja, in the Almería direction. Neither must we forget the roads linking the district's villages or the railway, the best way to travel and enjoy the view.

A captivating land

Tranquil white villages, farmhouses, archaeological remains, rivers, mountains, monumental towns... history and nature are intimately entwined in this land of many features, a land which captivates all who discover it. Its past, mainly Arab, is present in its winding streets and of squares of large windows and balconies decorated with flowered geraniums. Its countryside, its people and above all, the peace which permeates each nook and cranny of Guadix y El Marquesado makes it a paradise within our reach.

In order to make your visit even more rewarding and to help you get to know this ancient land, this publication has been divided into two sections. In the first section you will find information about the district's tourist products (heritage, cave-houses, handcrafts, natural attractions etc.) and in the second part various routes through its towns and beauty spots are presented.

Cultural crossroads

Is formed by the city of Guadix and the villages that surround it, this area has a very rich archaeological and historical legacy. Dolmens, Iberian remains, and the Roman city of Acci (Guadix), founded by Julius Caesar, all speak of the ancient settling of Guadix y El Marquesado, a crossroads dating from the most remote Antiquity.

The Muslims who came to the Peninsula in the 8th Century occupied these lands for centuries. The Morisco rebellion in 1568 provoked the expulsion of the Muslim population and their substitution by Christian resettlers.

The stamp of History

Guadix y El Marquesado, with a rich monumental and artistic heritage, which is enhanced by the beauty of the surrounding landscapes, encloses within its urbanistic walls a curious voyage through History. The Muslims left an indelible legacy: castles, city walls, towers, cisterns, baths and above all the towns with their narrow streets where time seems to have stood still since the middle ages.

Guadix y Marquesado's two most important monuments are: Guadix Cathedral and La Calahorra castle. The cathedral, built between the 16th and 18th Century, is a mixture of Gothic, Renaissance and Baroque styles: the chapel of San Torcuato is the work of Diego de Siloé while outside the main façade recalls the style of Borromini.

La Calahorra Castle, in the administrative seat of the Marquesado del Zenete, houses one of the most beautiful Renaissance palaces in Spain. Built in the early 16th Century and inspired by Italian models, its beautiful arcaded courtyard is an impressive sight.

Cave houses

The accommodation in caves of Guadix and El Marquesado, has become one of more attractive and singular tourist attractions of the province of Grenade. The special geological characteristics of la Hoya de Guadix dale and the Fardes and Gor, river valleys with their easily-excavated earth have given rise to a singular type of dwelling: cave houses. We can see and experience these dwellings excavated in the earth, equipped with three stars accommodation comfort (telephone, water, comfortable environment and electricity) thanks to the rural accommodation on offer in the area.

Cave dwellings have produced an attractive type of scenery, characterized by the contrast between the reddish earth and the houses' whitewashed chimneys and doorways. When you enter a cave house, you will understand why this way of life has lasted so long; its thermal insulation means that the temperature remains constant throughout the year, with an average of 18-20°C.

Warm in Winter and cool in Summer, rustic and welcoming, their whitewashed walls and simple forms captivate all who choose them for accommodation.

With its own special flavour

The gastronomy of Guadix y El Marquesado shows in its dishes the inheritance of the diverse cultures and populations that have inhabited it, using local products and traditional recipes which have survived the march of time. It is important to mention the virgin extra olive oil, with the Apellation of Origin "Aceite de Oliva Montes de Granada". Stews, migas, or fried (garlic) breadcrumbs, gachas, a type of polenta, gurullos, a sun-dried pasta made of flour, water and salt, shaped like wheat and used in rabbit and game stews, kid or lamb in persillade, marinated partridge etc... dishes to suit every palate.

Guadix is the place to enjoy "tarbinas", a fried bread and honey-based pudding, polenta with peppers and herrings, papas a lo pobre, "paupers'" potato stew, paprika with sardines, olla de San Antón, a stew based on haricot beans and pork products, Guadix soup and Mozarabe-style lamb. And to round it off, tocino de cielo, a delicious egg-custard.

Other products and dishes from the district are "los sustentos", a popular stew from Lanteira, Valle del Zalabí's pork products and cured meats, its wines, bread, cakes and pastries, while Diezma, is reknowned for its partridges, cheeses and liqueurs.

Ancient handcraft

Its ancient craftsmanship has survived thanks to its revaluation as artistic work. The most widespread craft in Guadix y El Marquesado is pottery, a tradition that dates back to Prehistory. Esparto, chairmaking, wickerwork and wrought iron are other handicrafts practised in the district, with the added value of each craftsman's personal stamp.

The clayey Guadix, earth is the raw material for its characteristic pottery with native forms such as water pitchers, Accitan jars and the Guadix torus. To purchase pieces of handcrafted pottery we can visit any of the numerous pottery stands in Purullena, where Accitan jars are made and pottery is thrown in the Levantine tradition can be bought. In Diezma we will find esparto and plaited esparto handicrafts.

Fiestas and traditions

With a wide folklore, there is in Guadix y el Marquesado festivities, pilgrimages, traditions and curious characters of the popular imagination like the Cascamorras of Guadix, declared a Festival of National Interest, celebrated on September 9.

Excitement is assured in the Gor bullruns, held during the celebrations in honour of San Cayetano, or enjoy the fiestas celebrated in La Peza in honour of Our Lady del Rosario. Savour the atmosphere of pilgrimages such as that of Our Lady Virgen de la Cabeza in Esfiliana (Valle del Zalabí), or of San Antón, celebrated in Guadix and in Alcudia, also in the Valle del Zalabí.

In Andalusia Holy Week celebrations enjoy a long tradition. It has been celebrated in Guadix since the 16th Century; its streets, squares and other spots are an incomparable setting for the processions in a special, Baroque atmosphere. During this time in Cortes y Graena the Enramao, a collection of branches, is hung out and a "Judas" is burnt, curious traditions which have been grafted onto the religious celebrations.

A singular scenery

The landscapes in Guadix y El Marquesado, located in the Sierra Nevada Natural Park, are of great beauty. It's a land characterised by its contrasting scenery: from the foothills of the Sierra Nevada to the mysterious, arid lunar landscape of the Montes Orientales, or western hills and from the reddish tones of Hoya de Guadix dale to the green valleys of the rivers that flow through the district.

In the Heart of Nature

The beautiful lands of the plateau of Guadix y El Marquesado, are the perfect setting for activity tourism in the heart of nature.

To get to know a land intimately, the best way to visit it is on foot or by mountain bike, enjoying the scenery while at the same time practising a healthy sport. Moreover, we can go on horse rides Andalusia's emblem animal, or visit the many caves scattered around the district, many of which boast prehistoric remains and paintings.

The spa in Alicún de las Torres (in the borough of Villanueva de las Torres) and that of Graena (in Baños de Graena) are the ideal place to relax and take it easy. Therefore, taking advantage of the medicinal properties of the district's waters, health tourism is another free time activity on offer in the district.

In northern

Sierra Arana

Montejicar is the natural limit of the Grenade province with the one of Jaén; the Parochial Church of San Andrés, of the XVI century, is raised in its particular town centre. Nearby, Guadahortuna has one of the most outstanding buildings of the architectonic patrimony of the region, the church of Santa Maria la Mayor.

Between Alamedilla and Guadahortuna is erected the Hacho Bridge, opened on the 22nd of March of 1898. The authors of the project were two direct pupils of the French architect Gustave Eiffel.

In Iznalloz, the Cueva del Agua of Sierra Arana is one of the most spectacular grottos and one of the best preserved in Andalusia. It is home to 23 different species of animal, some of which are unique. Within tourism in Piñar highlights a visit to the Cueva de las Ventanas, declared of cultural interest and natural monument.

To the south, near the Vega of Grenade, is Deifontes with its abundant spring of clear water.

Very often a frontier area, it knew few periods of lasting peace in the times of Islamic domination and finally suffered a whipping from the Castilian riders billeted in Cazorla. Both History and the beauty of the contrasting scenery are the inspiration for this route in which the attraction of the past combines with rural tourism. This is a land which has long been witness to the adventures of Man's history.

Alamedilla is a good spot from which to contemplate semi-arid surroundings next to fertile lands irrigated by the Guadahortuna river.

Enjoying the delightful, impressive desert scenery of Pedro Martínez, dotted with farmhouses among the hills and gorges, we arrive in Laborci-Illas which together with Moreda, constitute the borough of Morelábor; lands with a true frontier nature, as its archaeological remains testify.

The long history of Huélago and Fonelas can be seen in Prehistoric engravings and Mudejar architecture. We finish our trip in Benalúa, an obligatory route between Jaén and Almería (the Roman Via Augusta) which reflects its importance in the district's history. We are now close to the A 92, the backbone of Andalusia, which brings any point in the region within easy reach.

The stream of Gor is a natural depression located in a geographic pass very popular during the Prehistoric period, border between the eastern tribal groups and those of the Low Andalusia that occupied this area in the V millennium b.C.

A trip back in time is assured in this route which takes us to the Sierra de Gor. Both history and nature combine in each town and in the countryside, showing us man's imprint on his surroundings.

Our trip through History begins between the archaeological remains of Alicún de Ortega and of Dehesas de Guadix, where as well as its notable cave-houses we can also admire the impressive Cerro del Reloj hill.

Villanueva de las Torres is blessed with a bounteous climate, its fertile farmlands bathed by the Fardes river and our visit is made even more rewarding by the remains of a Roman road and baths.

Passing the ruins of long-gone civilisations and unforgettable scenery, we reach Gorafe, with the highest concentration of dolmens in the Iberian Peninsula. It boasts a funerary complex, the quality and variety of whose archaeological remains make it an important site, not to mention the beauty of its surroundings. There is a Megalithic Interpretation Centre.

Following the course of the river Gor, we approach the foothills of the range which bears its name and where numerous farmhouses and villages dot the countryside. In Gor, our destination, it is impossible not to admire the remains of its Islamic castle walls or visit the Las Víboras beauty spot.

From Darro to Lugros:

Mancomunidad del Marchal

Its route becomes a stroll through history from the Bronze Age, the Roman period to the Arab settlement. During this trip water, in all its different forms, will be our constant companion. We are in the Hoya de Guadix dale, completely surrounded by various mountain ranges. Here we can admire the eroded reddish peaks crowning the fertile valleys, eternal guardians which have jealously protected these lands throughout their History.

We set out from Darro which, together with Diezma, nestles in the foothills of the Sierra Arana, an ideal base for activities such as hiking. Towns and villages in the leafy valleys bathed by the various tributaries of Fardes contrast sharply with the naural ochre walls surrounding them. Passing through picture postcard scenery we arrive in La Peza, on the northern slopes of the Sierra Nevada which majestically crowns all of the area's scenery.

Only 7km from Guadix we come cross Cortes y Graena, a borough formed by three different villages situated in a beautiful valley, the colour of whose vegetation displays an incredible range of tones. The most important elements of its history are the venerable house caves which were inhabited as far back as the Muslim occupation. In nearby Purullena, set among scenery well worth admiring, visits to the Cuesta del Negro archaeological site and its large quarter of cave-houses are a must; while its traditional pottery is a joy to see.

From Darro to Lugros:

Mancomunidad del Marchal

Marchal reached its apogee in the Nasrid period, a fact reflected by its heritage. Among its buildings the Gallardo palace set upon the central hill is outstanding. It is important to mention the gullies of Marchal, classed as natural monument. Continuing southwards, we can see beautiful urban views of Beas de Guadix, a small village next to the river Alhama. Resuming our journey through this unforgettable scenery, we arrive in Polícar, a picturesque town of narrow streets and intimate squares overlooking a gorge, seeming to accompany its visitors in the quiet contemplation of its surroundings.

A Stroll through Guadix

The area where Guadix is located has been inhabited since Prehistory and it is one of the oldest human settlements of Spain due to its condition of crossroad. The ancient city of Guadix, was a Roman colony Iulia Gemella Acci, and later the Muslim town of Guad-Haix (Arabic for "river of life"). In the 15th Century it was the seat of the El Zagal court before being conquered by the Catholic Kings. This long, rich history can be seen in its streets, its squares and its numerous monuments. A stroll through the Alcazaba quarter and its surroundings will delight the senses.

The colonnaded Plaza de la Constitución, square is evidence of the legacy of the Christian resettlers. Worthy of admiration is the 17th-Century Corregidores Balcony on the South façade of the Town Hall. The Cathedral, built upon the site of the Main Mosque, dates from the 16th Century; its Gothic and Renaissance interior was terminated in the Baroque period while its main façade recalls the style of Borromini and its impressive tower rises over the city's rooftops.

This is the area where most of the city's monuments are to be found: the 16th-Century Archbishop's Palace and the Renaissance Villalegre Palace lead us to the Torreón del Ferro tower. More churches such as the 16th-Century church of San Miguel and of the church of la Magdalena, one of the oldest in Guadix, are testimony to the city's Christian heritage.

From the nearby Mirador de la Magdalena we can admire some truly beautiful views.

A Stroll through Guadix

Returning to the medieval quarter, with its narrow streets, so typical of Muslim architecture, we will see the Convent of the Conception and the Peñaflores Palace, a beautiful noble mansion from the Baroque period. We are now in the oldest part of Guadix, close to one of its most emblematic buildings: the Alcazaba. Declared a National Monument, its origins date from the Caliphate. Both a fortress and palace, its towers dominate the city and the plain.

Nestling between mansions and Huerta de los Pastores is the church of Santiago. This church was built upon the site of a former mosque. Its Mudejar tower recalling its Islamic legacy combined Diego de Siloé's Renaissance portico. We can also visit the church of San Torcuato before continuing to the Gate of the same name and on to the 15th-Century church of San Francisco and the church of Santa Ana, built upon a the site of a mosque.

- 1 Alcazaba (Citadel)
- 2 Santiago (St. James) Church
- 3 Peñaflores Palace
- 4 Conception Convent
- 5 St. Anne's Church
- 6 Cave-houses

Going towards the Ermita Nueva quarter where we can see the town's cave houses, we can visit the Baroque church of San Diego. Visiting the Padre Poveda cave and the Cave-Museum of Popular Arts and Customs to get a taste of the way of life which so fascinated Gerald Brenan, are both a must.

Around

On the outskirts of Guadix are a series of towns and villages we cannot afford to miss. Set between mountain ranges from which swift rivers flow and with a great variety of scenery, their location, history and their inhabitants' hospitality make them a must.

Walking the streets and around the villages, we can see the influence of different civilizations that inhabited this land, leaving all kinds of testimony.

Guadix

The third settlement is Esfiliana, where we can enjoy its rich heritage and beauty spots such as La Cuñana. Its biographical museum dedicated to the village's Baroque sculptor Ruiz del Peral, is not to be missed. We also recommend you to see the pilgrimage dedicated to Our Lady, Santa María de la Cabeza to Zalabí's shrine, built in the 16th Century.

Coming ever closer to the Sierra Nevada, crowned by Mt. Mulhacén while also reaching the end of our journey, we arrive in Albuñán and Cogollos de Guadix.

We are now near the Sierra Nevada, whose snow-capped peaks stand jealous guard over the whole area. Among the heritage to be admired in the villages is the ethnological museum in Albuñán, in a restored ancient tinajo (a type of porch) and the medieval cistern in Cogollos, next to the imposing brick tower of the church, a Mudejar needle pointing skywards. This area is the beginning of our next route which takes us through Marquesado del Zenete.

El Marquesado de Zenete

The district of El Marquesado, to be highlighted for its history and for its natural beauty, divides its territory between the slopes of Sierra Nevada and the plateau that lies at the foot of this Grenade massif. The whole of this route is through the majestic scenery of the Sierra Nevada foothills. These boroughs, dotted with small farming vilages, are a like a string of white pearls set between chestnut trees and brooks, postcard scenery that will linger forever in our memory.

Our route begins in Jérez del Marquesado, located at the head of rivers, between chestnut trees and the Barranco del Alhori gorge, it is in unequalled scenery, the whitewashed walls of its houses contrasting with their red roof-tiles.

castle, regarded as a National Historical and Artistic Monument. It is a Plateresque fortress from 1509, housing a Renaissance palace, something which in its time was a novel concept. With the Sierra Nevada in the background, its beautiful silhouette dominates the surrounding countryside, transporting us back to earlier times.

Near to La Calahorra is Aldeire, built around an ancient Mozarab monastery. Its fortress, dating back to the Caliphate, should not be missed, and neither should the Arab baths on the banks of the Los Molinos river, the place for a beautiful stroll. Not far away we come Ferreira, whose origins go back to Prehistoric times and whose uneven streets have been endowed over the centuries with a rich heritage.

Nearby is Dólar, built around a hill upon which the remains of a Muslim castle are still to be seen. Through its streets run water channels leading to the former Islamic baths. The route finishes Huéneja, strategically placed between the hills and the plains. Here we can enjoy its delightful natural surroundings which, thanks to its aquifers, are home to numerous chestnut trees and watermills.
